We also can provide you with connectivity through our app to your own account with your online broker. We are not involved in directing your trades, and you should not treat our general informational resources as being a model portfolio or trade recommendation. We act solely as a publisher of information and technology provider to connect you with your trading accounts (which you must separately open with third party brokers directly). Our decision to support access to your account at a third-party broker for real-time trading is a function of the ease, stability and efficiency of the API it offers for automated trading in your third party account from our platform. By no means do we endorse any broker nor have a partnership with them. You should perform your own due diligence before making a selection. We are also not able to assist you with on-boarding by a broker, and you must handle that directly with the broker.
